Dear Country Village Family and Friends...

Helping Family Members Feel Comfortable During Memory Care Resident Visits

• Start the Conversation

-When family members are struggling to communicate with Relatives, help them by starting the conversation.

• Find a new place to meet

- If a family member is unable to go to restaurants or back home, have a cup of coffee with them at their home.

• Keep the rest of the family up to date

- Send photos, share newsletters and calendars. This will help distant family members know that they are still apart of their loved one's life and that they're welcome in their community.

• Bring group activities

- Games can engage young family members. Old photos are a good way to reminisce together.

• Coordinate Visits

-Informal groups of families who visit at the same time can create supportive environments for themselves and their loved one. If your family member isn't talking, the relatives can talk with others in the group. This may encourage your loved one to talk. At the very least, all family members are able to interact with others.

Save the Date...
